PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.
This Superior Tubing is furnished with Lady sockets and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint and the absence of a deep thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is invariably tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,500 pounds to the square inch.

Titusville Morning Herald.

The South Advised to Watch and Wait.

From the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, June 17.

We concur with Mr. Stephens in regard to existing political facts and tendencies, but do not sympathize, to any great extent, in his alarm for the future. Despotism takes great strides in times of war and public disorder; but popular liberty revives with the return of peace and public quiet. England, in her great civil war, began to resist the encroachments of the crown, lost every vestige of freedom and sunk into an absolute autocracy; but she has steadily popularized her government from that day to this. So will it be in the United States, as we hope and believe. The jealousy for popular State and local rights is even now moving, and will grow with the subsidence of sectional distrust and hatred, and of alarm for the national integrity.

The true policy of the South, therefore, is not to press these issues on the Northern people, because all efforts to that end from this quarter will only defeat their object by exciting Northern suspicion, irritation and alarm. We are not to assume that the Northern people are less wise, sagacious or zealous for their rights than we are. Let them alone. Press no ultimatums on the Northern Democracy. Let events take their natural course. As, practically, the North must elect the President, let them make their own platform and selection of candidates; and though neither may altogether meet our views, let us accept them as an amendment on Grant and Radicalism, and wait patiently for further advances and improvements. This, in our humble view of the matter, is the proper and judicious course for the South to adopt.

Another Fierce Blast at the New Departure.

From the Columbus (Ga.) Sun, June 17.

We believe the new departure is utterly wrong in principle, and a fatal error in policy. Before the new departure, the Democratic party was a unit, and the Republicans were greatly divided upon the reconstruction of the Southern States. The injustice, unconstitutionality and gross usurpation was beginning to be in every section admitted. We all begun to appreciate the fact that the object our wise forefathers intended to secure and perpetuate was that all general interests should be left under one common government, and all local or sectional interests should remain with the State or sections to which they belong. This was the keystone of the arch. By the new departure we surrender this mighty principle. We say Congress and not the States can regulate suffrage. That the President can impose suspend the writ of habeas corpus, or in other words, that Congress can, by an act in express violation of our Great Charter, force an unwilling people at the point of the bayonet into repellion of the most abject servitude.

To escape this conclusion, see to what inconsistencies we are now forced by Radical arguments. We are compelled to say that our "accept the situation" now is hypocritical, or that our late opposition was founded on error. Are we to fight on the old, well-marked and selected line, or in the hour of victory to ground our arms and march prisoners, bag and baggage, horse, foot and artillery, into the camp of the enemy? No! will leap as loudly from the lips of millions as the red live lightning leaps from its fiery home.

We wish to "agitate," because we believe the storms of freedom are better than the calms of despotism. We wish to speak with no double tongue; we wish not to worship any two-faced Janus. We believe when God places an individual or nation in a situation that a lie must be spoken or acted to save life, then the time is come when that individual or nation should die.

We hear much said about policy. Policy is but another name for deceit. It has destroyed more men and nations than it ever saved. It is only the false homage paid to virtue by vice. It easier to be, than seem to be. If Radicalism is true, let us "accept the situation" in good faith; if false, let us make no new departures, but fight it boldly to the bitter end. We are told by the highest authorities that the end never justifies the means. However noble the end, it should be sacrificed when demanded by truth, justice and honor.

Tom Hughes on America.

POLITICS—SOCIAL LIFE—THE FAR WEST—THE BIG WORKS OF ILLINOIS BIGNESS OF THE AMERICAN MIND—RESULTS OF AMERICAN RESTLESS ENERGY—HOW THEY BUILD RAILROADS—GAMBLING—KEEN—SLAVERY—LIQUOR LAWS—A SOBER PEOPLE—THE WORKINGMEN.

On Saturday, the 10th inst., Mr. T. Hughes, M. P., gave before a crowded audience in the Theatre of the School of mines, Jermyn street, London, an account of his recent visit to the United States. Among the audience were many ladies and several Americans.

Mr. Hughes commenced by observing that the subject he had to speak upon was one which he thought ought to interest English men and women more than almost any other on political and social grounds—politically, because our relations with the United States are of more importance to us, and, he believed, to the people of America, than any which we can establish with other nations; socially, because in that vast country we may see almost all problems which are vexing us at home working themselves out in parallel lines under very different conditions—no doubt different in many respects, but under laws which are almost identical with our own, and through the agency of men speaking our own language and inheriting our traditions, whose principles, motives and habits are so like ours that we can thoroughly understand the actors, and may therefore learn something from their successes and their failures. Mr. Hughes then proceeded to say that the St. Lawrence, the lakes, the Mississippi, and the vast towns of only, comparatively, a few years' growth, were to him quite enough to account for the special enthusiasm for more bigness in the American mind, which is certainly characteristic of it. The rapid growth of Chicago struck him as being particularly wonderful. When he was there the drainage difficulty had not been overcome. A proposal was under consideration for carrying the sewerage right away west across the State of Illinois into the Mississippi; but the idea of draining into the Gulf of Mexico had hit the imagination of the American people resident in the West, and it was not unlikely that it would be carried out. In a big country there ought to be big works, and Illinois was bent on having the greatest engineering works in the world. Of course he stayed in the hotel which was raised by machinery eight feet while some five hundred guests were staying as usual in it.

He found that house-moving was not confined to the West. In Boston he saw them moving back a market—a solid brick block sixty yards long and two stories high—some twelve feet, to widen a street. It was a wonder to him that we in England never thought of moving houses in this manner. He was assured that the process was safe and not extravagant. One of the results of American restless energy has been the building of lines of railway, which are likely soon to cover the West with a network almost as close as that of Europe. These lines are not in the least like those we are used to. Here, again, the contrast of the Englishman shut up in a little island, and the same man with unlimited elbow room, came out very vividly. The former builds a very little tramway ten-mile line, as if it were intended to last until the last man had been carried over it. The latter just lays down one line of rails in the roughest way, and knocks up the shabbiest kind of wooden bridge—in short, cares for nothing except to get a train along as soon and cheaply as possible. Mr. Hughes then touched on the subject of the negro question, and said that he was sorry to find that the feeling of the North was not more in favor of the South than it was. He was not a slave-driver, nor was his father, nor was his father's father, but he was bred in a country where slavery was the law of the land, and he was sorry that the North had not more sympathy with the South than it had. He was not a Democrat, but he was sorry that the Republicans had lost the Democrats by their action on the question of negro suffrage. He

D. D. WILLIAMS.

PRESIDENT GRANT is in earnest about reform in the civil service. To give the offices to competent men alone, who are also honest, and to remove officers as much as possible from purely partisan influences, so embarrassing to members of Congress and detrimental to the service—appear to be the main features of the reform. The appointment of the distinguished friend of this Reform, Geo. Wm Curtis, the political editor of Harper's Weekly, is a guarantee that the President is deeply solicitous of wise, high-minded and enlightened recommendations, to be followed by appropriate legislation.

THE Bonapartists are still intriguing for restoration by appeals to the church party. Gambetta has come to the surface again, and is a candidate for the Assembly. The Communists are still engaged in secret conspiracies and Thiers is courting the army by state dinners and grand reviews. The Orleanists are not idle either, but keep flitting across the channel and issuing manifestoes. Political affairs in France are still mixed and unsettled. The election which will determine the form of the next government will be held on Sunday next.

THE Greeks not apologizing for their traitorous attack on Commodore Rodgers' peaceful expedition to their island on the 10th inst, he landed at Kongnee, took and destroyed five of their forts and left 243 of their dead around the citadel. Their wounded amounted to more than that number. He also destroyed four hundred and eighty-one small brass pieces, very many small arms and captured fifty flags. Commodore Rodgers lost Lieut. McKee and two seamen killed, and nine men wounded in the several engagements.

THE English Government have ratified the treaty entered into by the Joint Commission—a great triumph of peace, justice and national honor—a treaty, too, which forms a bright page in the history of Gen Grant's Administration.

At Maury, Tennessee, a few nights ago, a young man went to bed, leaving a burning candle and a pistol on his table. The dripping sperm ignited the table, the table ignited the pistol, the barrels began to explode, and when the young man awoke he was nearly burned, smothered and shot to death. His pillow received the balls and saved his head.

A diver at Charlston, engaged in looking around a sunken iron-clad, says the small fish near the bottom are as troublesome to him as mosquitoes are on land. They crowd around the glass eyes of his apparatus so thickly he can hardly see.

One thousand corpses, partially burned with petroleum to prevent infection, were buried on the 29th of May in Champ de Mars. The Liberte describes petroleum as insufficient, and suggests utter destruction by quicklime, not only as a sanitary measure, but to reduce to dishonored dust the remains of criminals, and leave to future revolutionists no possibility of giving an ovation to their bones.

A story is told of a father in a church, who, when the marriage service came to the point where the clergyman asks, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" replied: "Well, sir, I am called to do it, although it do go against the grain. I wanted her to marry Bill Plowser, who is worth twice the money o' that ere man." The answer was not considered regular.

The Exeter News Letter tells a good story concerning Mr. L. Everett Fogg, of Epping, N. H., who has been discharged from a store in Boston on account of his honesty. He was clerk in a store, and during his service found a pocket book and contents which a customer accidentally left in the shop. This was shown to his employer by Mr. Fogg, with a request to know "what should be done with it." His employer told him "that he should give it to him, as he always kept what was found in the store." Mr. Fogg thereupon asked to send the pocket book to the owner. His employer objected, and the result was that Mr. Fogg was discharged.

H. W. Beecher gets off the following: "Was there ever a boy who learned to smoke because he liked it? Because he wanted tobacco? What is it? God has set up a gate—the most odious gate—through which every smoker must pass; the gate of the temple of vomit; and through it they go with retchings infinite. Why is this? Men smoke, and boys must be like men, hence it is that we see so many cigars going around the street with boys attached to them."

The son of Brigham Young, recently appointed a cadet at West Point, is now undergoing the hazing process and don't like it much. To a reporter who interviewed him last week he said that the last three years of cadet life might do very well, but the first year was enough to try the patience of even a Mormon saint. He says the older cadets spit their quids of tobacco on the grass and then make him carry them off the grounds.

He made a brief address accepting the nomination and thanking the delegates for the honor conferred. The committee on resolutions reported the following, which, after discussion, were adopted, and the Convention then adjourned sine die:

Resolved, That we cherish a patriotic and honorable pride in the past history of the Republican party, identified as it is with the great triumphs of human freedom and progress and with the emancipation of an oppressed people from bondage and the preservation of our country from anarchy and ruin, threatened by the late rebellion, and that while we appreciate the great questions now presented to the country, many of which are the outgrowth of the civil war, we rejoice that unlike those whose record in opposition to the war for the preservation of the Union is unchangeably written, we have no cause for consigning the past with its eventful memories to oblivion, and no desire to forget the lessons of patriotism and loyalty contained in its teachings.

Resolved, That while we recognize the excellence of our State Government, existing under and acting in harmony with the constitution of the United States, we believe that the Federal Government, established under the same constitution, does possess and ought to exercise sufficient power to protect every American citizen in the untrammelled expression of his sentiments, in the free exercise of the ballot, in the fullest enjoyment of his property and in absolute safety of his person wherever the American flag floats over an American sail, and that this protection the Government should extend to the person of every citizen of the United States whether upon land or sea, at home or abroad.

Resolved, That in the present exigencies of our country, the tariff on imports is the readiest and least oppressive mode of raising the larger portion of the revenue needed for the support of the Federal Government, and that in assessing duties care should be taken to so adjust them as not to prejudice but promote the interests of every citizen and branch of industry in the land, special pains being taken to foster, in every practicable way, the honor and interests of the American laborer.

In the next two resolutions Congressional action is recommended for the revival of American commerce, and faith in the principles of prohibition is affirmed, and finally it was resolved that the administration of President Grant is by its economical management, general finances and interior monetary reduction of the national debt, by its wise conduct in foreign affairs, especially in securing an honorable and advantageous adjustment of all our difficulties with Great Britain, by its judicious and determined efforts to reform the civil service of the country, by its humane and successful policy in dealing with the Indians, and by its persistent efforts to secure the rights of every American citizen, without regard to caste or color, do demand and receive at our hands a renewed expression of our confidence and assurance of our unwavering support.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, June 29, 1871—9 P. M.

The market, though firm, was stagnant to-day, and but few transactions are reported. Upon the Lower Creek buyers were offering $4 85 and $4.90, with sellers holding at $4.93 and over. Upon the Upper Creek $4.55 was the ruling bid, though $4 60 was spasmodic bid at the close, without finding sellers. The opinion prevails that though no important appreciation in prices will mark the close of the first half year's business, there will at least be no decrease in figures. But to-morrow will tell the story.

Governments strong and higher; 5-20 issues have advanced from ¼ to ½ per cent.

There was an active demand for Central Pacific bonds this afternoon, which led to an advance of ¾ per cent.

Stocks opened active, with an upward tendency, especially for Lake Shore and Ohios, but the boom stopped and checked the advance momentarily. The market is oversold, so that active stocks are loaning flat. A buoyant market is looked for in July. St. Paul, New York Central and Reading have stood up very well in this decline, and it is said the stock in these boards is mostly held by directors. Ohios have been a long suffering. Rumoured and St. Joe stocks were higher this afternoon and in demand to cover speculative sales. The market closed steady.

Money easy at 3 per cent.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Universal Safeguard.—It is useless for State Legislatures to pass laws for the preservation of the public health, if the great law of self preservation, which depends for its enforcement upon the will of the individual, is suffered to remain a dead-letter.

There is a secret in an adult member of the community, of either sex, in the country, who has not seen the testimony in favor of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, furnished over their own signatures by persons of acknowledged eminence in science, literature, art, commerce, and every department of business and professional life. These witnesses have declared in the most explicit terms that the preparation is a safeguard against epidemics, a severe remedy for dyspepsia, a valuable antibilious medicine, a promoter of appetite, a genial and harmless stimulant, a good acclimating medicine a strengthener of the nerves, a general invigorant, a protection against the deleterious effects of malaria and impure water, and that it imparts a degree of vigor and activity to the vital forces which is not communicated by any other of the tonics and stomachics in use. Under these circumstances the self-preservative law of nature should teach every rational person who, either by reason of inherent debility or in consequence of expos

We give in another column an interesting biographical sketch of a permanent citizen of Titusville, Mr. John C. Bryan. Mr. Bryan is a self made man, and his life is full of encouragement to the mechanic class, showing the power of labor when directed with intelligence and skill, and propelled with energy, to achieve important results.

THE Eagle base ball club of this city took their first annual tour down the creek yesterday as far as Shamburg, to play the return game of ball with the Red State of that place. They went down feeling assured of losing the game, but coming back they felt better; they had a good time, and the grounds were crowded with spectators. The game resulted in favor of the Eagles by a score of 38 to 53 The Eagles and the Pacifics wish to draw from the match game on the 4th, for reasons known to both clubs.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A man named George Kent, from Corry, attempted to jump on the "down express" last evening as it was leaving the depot, but slipped and fell under the cars, which were fortunately stopped just in time to save amputating his head and hands, which were across the rail. His carpet-bag fell beneath the wheels, and a bottle of whisky that was in the same was broken and the fumes of the ardent bespoke the partial cause of the man's carelessness. As no one will be warned by this occurrence we do not point a moral. Next!

THE OPERA BOUFFE.—Fox's French Opera Bouffe troupe, numbering eighty-two individuals, among whom are the three celebrated prima donnas Aimee, Silly and Persini, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, and are sojourning at the principal hotels. To-night "La Perichole" in all its original beauty of scenery and music, will be given, in which M'lle Aimee has won such distinguished laurels. The famous letter song is alone worth the price of admission, and cannot fail to receive the plaudits of the audience, as it has so repeatedly in New York and elsewhere. M Gausins, as "Piquillo," the rollicking minstrel and M Duchesne, as the "Viceroy of Peru," are two artistes especially designed for the parts assigned to them, and in fact the entire opera is strongly cast.

HOW THEY TAKE PHOTOGRAPHS IN ROUSEVILLE.—A few days since a gentleman from over the Rhine, and also about half-seas over, while prowling around Rouseville trying to find a picture gallery, by some unlucky chance stumbled into a dentist's office, and after adjusting his features, took a seat in the operating chair. The "bone jerker," seeing he had a foreigner to deal with, and one not capable of speaking much English without any ceremony pried open the victim's jaws and soon had a tooth laying on the floor.

"Donder und blitzen," said the infuriated dutchman; "dat is not it."

"Oh, yes, all right," replied the astute tooth carpenter, as he put his gas tongs on another hash grinder, which was also placed on the floor.

"Sacre hompidle, dat is not what I want. I want my picture taken. Ain't this the photograph gallery?" He was informed that he was in the wrong shop and, partially sobered, he picked up his extracted molars and went out. This is the simple story as current in Rouseville. It strikes us we have seen a similar yarn in the comic almanac, but an oil man vouches for its truth. So it must be true.

FIRE AT MORELAND & CO'S REFINERY.—About half-past nine o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the refinery of Moreland & Co., on the south side of the creek, under the following circumstances: One of the stills was being cleaned out, and the still cleaners were carrying the sludge, or spent tar, across the top of an adjoining five hundred barrel still, charged with oil, which was undergoing the process of distillation. Attached to this still is a vacuum guage, with a five-inch aperture, and one of the men as he passed allowed his bucket to come into such violent contact with said guage, as to dislodge the valve, which failed to come back to its seat. The consequence was a rush of highly heated vapor into the external atmosphere. There were four men on the top of the still at the time, and while they were attempting to replace the valve a slight explosion took place, setting fire to the escaping vapor. The jar of the explosion parted a flange on the crude oil feed pipe, and the oil poured out over the top of the still, and also caught fire. The men beat a hasty retreat, and one of them jumped off the top of the still. This unfortunate individual, thinking he was on fire, crawled to the bank of the creek and rolled himself into the water below. He was picked up and conveyed to his residence, where the services of Dr. Wynne were brought into requisition. His right leg was discovered to be broken above the ankle, which was speedily and skillfully set. The name of the unfortunate man is William Zimmerman. Meanwhile the fires were drawn from the furnaces beneath the still, while steam was admitted to its interior, which had the effect of forcing the valve back to its seat. A powerful stream of water from the large Niagara force pump on the premises, was also brought to bear upon the burning oil on the top of the still, which in a few minutes extinguished the flames. The Fire Department turned out, but before they had time to reach the refinery their services were rendered unnecessary. The time occupied in bringing the fire under control was about seven minutes. This fire teaches the value of having a steam pipe connected with each separate tank, or still in the refinery, also that the pipe should enter at the top of the still. There is not the slightest doubt that on this occasion it saved what might have become a most disastrous conflagration. The loss was very trifling.

DEATH OF MRS GREEN.—The death of Mrs. Dorothy Green, wife of L P Green, of Troy township, leaves a sad vacancy in her home and in the social circle in which she moved. The maiden name of Mrs Green—Miss Dorothy Jennings, is very familiar in this region, as that of a schoolmistress for twenty years in Plum and Cherry Tree townships, in Venango county, and in Troy township in this county. She was a very great favorite with the farmers' families, and was looked up to as a great authority by several generations of children, to whom she gave their first lessons—always the most indelible. Mrs. Green was an active member of the Methodist Church of the Sunville Circuit, and was always a good sister in times of sickness or trouble in her neighborhood When anything appealing to charity or patriotism came up, "Dolly" was the master-spirit. She was a brave spirit in the war; many was the banner she got up for the "soldier boys," and when the news came of Jeff Davis' surrender, she dismissed her school at Chapmanville, and came down to the "Diamond," a distance of three miles, to ring the bell there, as a sign of rejoicing. Some Democrats tried to stop her, and said there would be bloodshed. She replied there was not a dollar of Copperhead money in the bell, and she was bound to ring it, and so she did. Dolly had taken up the collection herself for the purchase of the bell, and told the truth. A good woman, in an humble sphere, passed away when Mrs Green died, leaving a record of good deeds and a blessed memory to blossom over her dust.

THE Opera Bouffe troupe, eighty-two in number, arrived here yesterday at 3:10, on the U & P. R R. A great deal of trouble was experienced in finding accommodations for them all at the hotels. They are scattered around among the hotels, including the Parshall House, Crittenden, Bush, Mansion, Monroe and American, each taking as many as they could, and up to supper time many were unprovided for. M'lle Aimee, M'lle Persini, M. Brunet, J. W. Morrissy and H S Jackson, the manager, are at the Parshall House; Mr. Henry C Page, the agent, and M'lles Lupo, Antonino, Albertina, Ricci, the Mazzri Sisters, and Gousins, first tenor, and fourteen others are at the Crittenden. The orchestra numbers twenty-one instruments. The entire company will appear this evening in "La Perichole" The seats are being sold very rapidly, and we would advise those who wish to procure good seats to secure them to-day.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—There will be a meeting of the general committee on the celebration of the Fourth of July, at the Bank, this Friday evening at eight o'clock It is especially desired that every member of both general and sub-committees be present, as all reports must be made up and handed in at that time. Don't forget to-night, at eight o'clock
N. L. WILLARD, Sec. Gen. Com.

MESSRS. FORMAN & VANDERGRIFT offer a reward of $100 for the detection of the party who cut holes in their East Sandy oil pipe line a day or two since. On Tuesday they were subjected to a loss of over fifty barrels of oil from some one having made a hole in their pipe with some sharp pointed instrument.

REMEMBER that the circus is coming, that it is Dan Rice's circus, that Dan Rice's circus has a splendid corps of acrobats, gymnasts and equestrian performers, that the daring and fascinating Lilla and Zoe are a feature of the entertainment, and the trained horses "Excelsior" and "Douglass" will perform their wonderful tricks in Titusville on Saturday next, rain or blow, sun or snow.

John C. Bryan.

From the Petroleum Monthly for June.

John C. Bryan was born in Iceland, December 25, 1831, and came to America in 1848. He settled in Erie, Pa., there learning the trade of a machinist, and working thereat until 1853, when he returned to Ireland on a visit to his friends.

In the spring of 1859 he returned to America and at once found a location at Warren, Pa., as foreman in the machine shop of Brown & Bros. He here built the first steam engine ever made in Warren.

While in the employ of Brown Bros., oil was discovered at Titusville, and in a short time the fever of operation and speculation extended to all the surrounding country. All kinds of power were brought into requisition to make a way down to the deposits of this new found mineral wealth. Although Col. Drake had used a steam engine to drill his, the first well, still this was a mode far too expensive to go into general use. Horse-power, water-power and "spring pole" power were used very extensively for a long time, but as the first and second sand oil became exhausted, and it became necessary to go deeper, the horse, water-wheel and sapling were supplanted by steam engines, and this created a demand for capital and ingenuity in their manufacture. At this time everything iron came from abroad. Erie shops manufactured some, but their work did not suit the metropolitan tastes of operators, who were mostly Eastern men, and as a consequence the great majority were ordered from New York and further east

At this juncture Mr. Bryan suggested to the Messrs. Brown a probable profit in the manufacture of engines. They did not accept the idea favorably, not believing themselves able to compete with older works, and they were finally only induced to try the experiment by the generous offer of Mr. Bryan, which reflects great credit upon his penetration and judgment. This was to make one and take the cost out of his own wages if they could not dispose of it. However, it was sold as soon as completed, and six others ordered. These were but of six-horse power.

Mr Bryan was also at this time engaged in the manufacture of pole tools, the rope not being as yet successfully used. He constructed the first set of these tools made in Warren, only a few months after the discovery of the oil by Drake, March 5, 1860. About this time Messrs. Kingsbury, Ames and Richards, men from the shop of Brown Bros., at Warren, erected a small foundry in Titusville, where the Petroleum Iron Works now stand, and applied to Mr. Bryan to come into their employment. He did so, and after working for them for six months found that they were not conducting the business profitably and must soon break up He formed the project of purchasing the entire concern, and applied to Mr. William McMullen, then doing business in Warren, for assistance, which resulted in the purchase, by Bryan and McMullen, of the entire establishment, for six thousand dollars. As there were but two lathes in the shop at that time, the price paid was full value, at the least.

Mr. McMullen died in December, 1862, thus leaving the whole weight of responsibility resting upon Mr Bryan. Business at this time was very dull, but he was not discouraged. He had resolved from the first to carry on the business at Titusville, and there only, let the consequences be what they might, and to live or die with the place The shop employed but five hands, and there was but little work for even these. There was a general stagnation in all branches of business, and he was often advised to leave the place, but instead he only worked the harder and labored to adapt his manufactures to the wants of all classes. When there was no demand for drilling tools he made plows, scrapers, &c.

When the plow market was glutted he turned his attention to saw-mill work. In the leisure hours of such times he busied himself constructing, improving and completing the patterns for a small engine, which he built and set up in the shop, hoping to get orders for more. In this he succeeded.

In the summer of 1864 the work was increased so that thirteen machines and about thirty men were employed. On the 23d of November, 1864, the whole of the works were burned down. The loss was about $12 000, and included everything.

On the morning after the fire his friends gathered about him asking what he was going to do His answer was characteristic He said: "I am going to carry on the foundry business; I am not dead yet" The latter part of which, if not so classic as the closing speech of the immortal Webster, amounted to more, for he evinced signs of the most vigorous life by rebuilding the works the same winter, and placing them in complete running order by the 1st of March, 1865.

No sooner were the works completed than business came in more rapidly even than they could dispose of it. Operators were so impressed by the energy and perseverance of Mr. Bryan that they did not hesitate to apply to him and expect prompt action in filling orders, and they were not disappointed

(It must be remembered that Mrs. McMullen still remained an equal partner after the death of Mr. McMullen) The works now gave employment to about forty men, and everything was prospering finely, when the "rains descended and the winds blew and the floods of 1865 came," an event long to be remembered by oil men as the most disastrous blow ever struck at the oil business and the industries of the oil regions. Everything—trade, money and credit, seemed to be swept away. But those times are too vivid in the minds of all our citizens to need description here.

The always fertile resources of Mr. Bryan were again taxed to devise ways and means for the employment of his men and machinery.

In May, 1866, the firm sold one-third interest to Mr. Dillingham.

Later the same year, Mr. Bryan put in execution an idea of adding to the works a boiler shop—against the wishes of his partner, however.

The building of boilers at this time was so much of an experiment, and its success so doubtful, that the firm not only furnished all the machinery and stock, but agreed to give to Mr Ackerman, a practical boiler-maker, one-half of all that would be made for one year for conducting the works, and the business was so limited that he did not even make common wages in that time Operators preferred going abroad for their boilers to taking the chances on home manufacture. Still Mr. Bryan did not despair. He kept on and would occasionally sell a boiler, but this branch of the business did not flourish well during this and the two following years. In 1868 they added to the works a brass shop They were induced to start the latter to enable them to supply the increasing demand for brass boxes, gibs and many other things for which they were dependent on foreign shops

The works of Bryan, Dillingham & Co., are situated on Franklin street, and at the present time are surpassed by none in the oil regions or in Western Pennsylvania. The magnitude of these works may be inferred from their production of finished work, and men and capital employed. Four iron tanks have been completed of a capacity of 20,000 barrels each The firm have also built over 200,000 barrels of iron tankage in the oil regions. The shop turns out six boiler-and engines per week on an average; two derrick rigs and two sets of tools per day, beside casting and manufacturing all the brass work for their own use and for their wholesale and retail trade. The refiners' stills manufactured by this company have acquired a standard reputation. The well tools of the Petroleum Iron Works have gained a reputation not only in the oil region, but are known throughout the United States as well as in the petroleum districts of South America, Europe, Asia and Australia.

The firm employ 200 men, to whom they pay annually $160 000, and have a capital of $300 000 invested. Within the past six months they have prepared and put in operation some of the best tapping machines in the United States; and these are all necessary to meet the wants of the refiners, which is a large and growing interest in Titusville and vicinity. With seventy-two machines in their shops they do a greater diversity of work than any shop in the State. The success of this establishment, its wealth and reputation are certainly to be accredited to the perseverance of Mr. Bryan. Titusville has long been the radiating centre for our heaviest oil operators. The wants and suggestions of the operators, concurrent with Mr. B's ability to devise and execute, have conspired to the perfection of very many tools for drilling, pumping and fishing oil wells.

As a city, and one too of greatest business prosperity, Titusville is largely indebted to the energy and pertinacity of Mr. Bryan; his pertinacity to live or die with the place, and his courage in battling with hard luck and hard times. Others, with large capital, started at different times in the same business, but almost invariably succumbed to the pressure of hard times. His ability as a workman is unquestioned. Contracts for the erection of large refineries at New York have been awarded to him, and filled with such satisfactory results that other contracts of a like nature were offered in such numbers that it was impossible to fill them. And this when rival establishments offered to do the same work thousands of dollars less.

Mr. Bryan has recently invented a steam heater for hotels and private houses, which is pronounced superior to anything of the kind in use.

We have given the details of the growth of the iron interests of the oil regions, feeling that there is an important part in the history of our vast mineral wealth, and the means and modes of its production. We of to-day are alone interested in the business and successes of to-day. Looking back through but ten years, we can scan the entire history of petroleum in Western Pennsylvania It seems but yesterday that Colonel Drake opened the mine of wealth which is now so successfully worked, and whose bounty reaches to every civilized land. But in the future, when the present generation has passed away, the men who are now the support ing pillars of the grand edifice of commercial industry and prosperity here erected, will live in the respectful memories of their successors.

Lubricating Oil at Erie.

It never rains, but it pours. Meadville struck oil a week ago, and Corry a few days since, and now Erie cries "Eureka" and swells the chorus of rejoicing. We have chronicled the strikes at Meadville and Corry, and the determination to test the territory in both places to the fullest extent. The telegraph yesterday stated that while a Mr. Deming was boring for gas at the Union Depot in the city of Erie on Wednesday morning, heavy lubricating oil was struck at a depth of 453 feet. Great local excitement prevailed in consequence. The Dispatch of Thursday has the following notice of the occurrence:

It has long been a matter of doubt as to whether oil could be obtained, in paying quantities, near Erie, though it has generally been supposed that it existed hereabouts, and one well (the Althof) has produced considerable. A large number of gas wells have from time to time been drilled during the past few months, at various depths, the average being about 600 feet. A few have been drilled deeper, but without any better results than the shallower wells.

Mr. Deming contracted for the sinking of a gas well in rear of his planing mill, between Peach and State streets, a few rods north of the depot, and it was being put down by Messrs. Patterson and Crowley. Yesterday morning about 2 o'clock, when the drill was a depth of 453 feet, a big vein of gas was struck, which blew all the water out of the well, sending it up so hurriedly as to clear the workmen out of the derrick. For about three hours they could not resume work. The rope was found to be coated with a slimy greenish looking stuff, and as this was scraped off, it was found to be heavy, lubricating oil, of the best quality. We saw a lot of the stuff, just as gathered, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Deming is in a quandary to know whether to go on with the drilling, or stop at once and test the vein of oil The well is now steadily discharging a large volume of gas. As soon as the oil was shown, adjacent property owners withdrew their lots from the market, preferring to wait until the question of value shall be decided. The finding of a hundred barrel well here would give Erie a wonderful impetus.

Weather Items.

—Orarcoats, gloves and heavy clothing were in demand last evening, and those who kicked the stove out of the house last month were compelled to huddle around the old kitchen stove, or shiver.

—How many times will it be necessary to call the attention of our citizens to the fact that there is an ordinance requiring all walks to be cleared of snow such weather as this.

—A stranger was badly injured by an icicle which fell from the eaves of the Opera House last night and caved in his osfronutis.

—The boys who indulge in the practice of clinging on behind cutters and sleighs will get hurt if they persist in so doing.

—The Skating Park is open, as the sign in Howe's news depot informed the public last night.

LICENSES TO SELL KEROSENE.—The extent of the retail business in petroleum may be judged from the fact that there has been found in New York city twenty-three dealers in the article. The competition is so great, that adulteration with benzine render some of their fluids utterly dangerous and worthless. Nearly one-tenth of all the fires in New York during the past year are attributed to the use of these lightening compounds. In future all dealers in kerosene will be licensed by the Commissioners of the Fire Department. The new law goes into effect on and after July 1st. This is a good move, as it is to the interest of the fire insurance companies to secure a controlling voice in their appointment. It remains to be seen how far it will remedy the evil.

CHALLENGE TO TRIAL OF MOWERS.—Of late it is becoming well understood by the farmers, that one of the greatest points of merit in a Mowing Machine, is its weight in draft. We claim for the Climax that it is the lightest draft machine that can be brought into the field; and is easier managed, and will do its work better, with less labor to the team and driver, than any of its competitors.

To show that we believe what we affirm, we challenge any and all other Machines, to meet us at any time within 15 days, at any point they may select within twenty miles of Corry, convenient to a railroad station, and decide these points by actual trial in the field Bring out your mowers. Let the farmers see what they can do in support of their claims.

PREPARING GUNS FOR THE FOURTH.—Bryan, Dillingham & Co. are preparing their iron 6 pound cannon for the Fourth. It was last used to celebrate the termination of the Franco Prussian war. They also shipped yesterday to Stanford, Conn., an elegant two pound brass piece, handsomely mounted, and have received orders for six others of the same pattern.

THE Emmanuel Episcopal Church, of Corry, will hold a fair for the remaining evenings of this week to raise funds for the benefit of the church. There will be valuable and fashionable china sets, parlor sets, silver service, etc., offered for sale by lottery.

THE dollar store in Corinthian Block was fairly besieged by our citizens yesterday, and an immense trade was the result. Fine chromos and watches were disposed of at the low price of one dollar each, and all were abundantly pleased with their investments. Give them a call.

SPECIAL MEETING.—The members of Col Drake Engine Company are hereby notified to attend a special meeting this evening at 8 o'clock
